THE NEW AMERICAN NAVY.

TO BE NO LACK OF FUNDS.

Report of the House Committee on the Prospect of the United States Having Sufficient Men-of-War.

Washington, Jan. 25.—In its report upon the naval appropriation bill the house committee on naval affairs summarizes the present condition and nature prospects of the navy of this country. The report asysis—With regard to the new navy congress seems to have settled upon a policy of appropriating towards its construction 86,000,000 per annum. Your committee be lieve this will build up a navy as fast as may be the knowledge acquired from the construction of the house dictates. Our navy department and our ship builders are utilizing as far as may be the knowledge acquired from the construction of the committee of the coloral will be more effective when the coloral will be more effective when the construction of the murder and taken the points accomplished are longer sustained. The performance was very far from being a failure, and it was never in the least absurdance of competition among shipbuilders. Besides, it would be an easy matter in this country to build ships more rapidly than we could supply them with armament, of domestic manufacture. Satisfactory progress is being made by private contractors for supplying heavy gun and armor prival is entitled to respect and, with a plant of the committee and of the department to domestic manufacture. RAILROAD RUMBLES

Marcus Daly Talks About the New Line-Other Railroad Matters.

To a reporter of the Anaconda Review Marcus Daly said a few days ago: "Within six months our business will be 30 per cent greater than it is to-day, and a firstclass double track railroad would have all it could do to take care of us." After complaining of the disposition of the eastern wners of the Montana railways, who do not appear to realize the n eds of the Anaconda at times, but without reflecting on the local management, Mr. Daly said as to certainly see to it that, before the year certainly see to it that, before the year ends the railroad service between the smelter and the mines is able to keep up with the procession. There isn't a doubt in the world that we can get a better line with better grades than those of the Montana Union, and in starting out, it is not a question of what we would like to do, but what we must do. I fully expect that we shall have to build a line of our own. We shall run no exhibition train for the directors, but if I do not see you again before December 5, just come to Butte that day and I'll see that you get a nice red cushion in the caboose of the first ore train that starts out bound for Anaconda over the new line."

"The Northern Pacific company is negotiating with the Anaconda company for the contract to build their road to connect the mine and smelter, and that they want to operate the road in connection with their branch from Three Forks to Butte, which is certain to be built at once. The Montana Central pe ple are not saying much, but well posted railroad men are confident that they will build to Anaconda this year. These two projects, if carried out, will decrease the value of the Montana Union's business, and it is reported that that road is in the market. The Montana Central is said to be negotiating for the purchase of the lines on the hill, but does not want the rest of the road, being confident of its ability to locate another one."

The last number of the Railway Age contains the following interesting data of the Montana Union freight business of the the Montana Union freight business of the past two years:

During the year 1887 the Montana Union received from the Union Pacific 176,898 tons of freight, and from the Northern Pacific 85,560. During the past year it received from the Union Pacific 273,924 and from the Northern Pacific 152,299, making a total increase from both of 166,734 tons.

In 1887 the local business transacted by the Montana Union amounted to 640,328, and in the year just passed it increased to 974,883 tons.

In 1887 there was forwarded to the Union Pacific 40,117 and to the Northern Pacific 20,063 tons of freight. During 1888 these figures rose to 60,406 for the Union Pacific and 34,507 for the Northern Pacific.

The Anaconda ore shipments for the year 1888 show an increase over those of the year preceding of 114,978 tons.

This makes the total increase of tonnage handled by the road in 1888, 535,021 tons.
